visual artists

Edward DuBrow, a physician in Sun City, has printed over five thousand black and white prints. Using seven different cameras, his subjects frequently include works in nature, or juxtaposed objects in unusual environments. DuBrow has exhibited his show, "The Lying Carousel," at the New England Carousel Museum in 2004. His next museum show, "The Ancient Jewish Cemetery of Prague," will open in 2006.

Sarah Hurwitz is a Phoenix resident, and a recent graduate from the University of Colorado. Hurwitz first focused on creating brightly-colored pop art acrylic images, but has since turned to multi-media works. Her current pieces focus on images that relate to American history, women's history, and how Americans began to represent themselves and the things around them visually in the early 20th Century.

Nancy Kravetz, a Phoenix resident, with degrees from Temple University and Simmons College, has studied oil and acrylic painting and Chinese calligraphy since moving to Arizona. Kravetz has exhibited her abstract acrylics and mixed media works in Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado, including the Phoenix Art Museum and the Scottsdale Civic Plaza. Her works are found in individual and corporate collections.

Judy Lebeau, a Phoenix native, is a professional actress who has appeared in several motion pictures, on television, and has been heard in hundreds of radio commercials. Eight years ago Lebeau began painting in mixed media on canvas and wood, selling primarily commissioned works. Her evocative style is attracting an audience of admirers.

Diane Scholar, a Scottsdale resident and graduate of Baylor University, has studied fine arts at Phoenix College and Glendale College. Scholar is a watercolorist and has exhibited her work throughout Arizona, including Arizona Artists Guild Shows in Scottsdale, Plein-Air Artists of Northern Arizona Shows in Flagstaff, the West Valley Art Museum in Surprise, and the Shemer Art Center in Phoenix.

Joel Zolondek, Phoenix-area resident, is a CPA and photographer. Zolondek specializes in sporting photography. He has photographed events involving baseball, football, basketball, tennis, ice hockey and golf. His photographs have appeared in various sports magazines. His work has also been displayed at Bank One Ballpark, the Baseball Hall Of Fame in Cooperstown, New York, Fox Sports TV and in private collections.
